Naruto Shippuden: Clash of Ninja Revolution 3 Wii ISO was an exciting new fighting game developed by Eighting and distributed by CyberConnect2 in 2005 for the Wii video game console. The game was later ported to both the Sony PlayStation 2 and the Nintendo DS in 2006 as part of the Game Boy Advance or PlayStation 2 Super Smash Bros. series, respectively, and later ported to the Nintendo Wii under the name Naruto Shippuden: Dragon Blade Chronicles. In the United States, this game was released as Naruto: Clash of Ninja Revolution 2. The game is a sequel to the GameCube game Naruto: Clash of Ninja. It features more ninja in the game (more than the other games in the series), over 100 playable characters, 20 stages, new moves, new ways to attack, a manga-style graphic style, new characters like the Four Symbols, and more than 60 voice acting. This game was developed by Eighting as a port of the Game Boy Advance release, in Japan. This game was distributed and sold exclusively in the. This song was the feature for the video game Naruto Shippuden: Dragon Blade Chronicles released in 2006. The game is the fifth Naruto game to be released internationally and features the same main six characters from the anime series. It features a story that continues where the GameCube game ends and is the only game of the series to feature a storyline. The main characters are disguised as shinobi from all over the world in order to prevent the villagers of Konoha from being destroyed. In this game the ability to change styles was a completely new feature in the series, and it was a completely new feature to be able to change your character's style when fighting. Since the main story for the game is the events that happened on the first part of the "Battle Summit", the majority of the stages take place in the Akatsuki bases of Konohagakure, as well as the training ground of Akatsuki themselves. The game also allows Naruto Uzumaki, Shikamaru Nara, and Sasuke Uchiha to change their features through a special art style. This art style was used for the characters' avatars in the Kakaquran.
